The Press Convention.

THE third annual session of the National Colored Press Association convenes in Washington, D. C., 27th. I is supposed there will be a pretty full representation of the various papers throughout the country published in the interest of the colored people. The meeting can certainly do no harm, and may be productive of much good in a newspaper and general sense. It is probably too early in the history of colored newspapers for such a gathering to be attended with the same significance as would attend a like gathering of white journalists, but we are coming to the front, and the time is not far distant when our press will exert a far more salutary influence on public affairs than it now does. Our papers place of Daniel Webster. are in their infancy, but are multiplying very rapidly. We shall be represented at Washington, and hope that the meeting of the Association may in every respect be successful.

Can You Tell?

Can anybody give a sensible reason why it is that a colored driver may be coachman and confidential servant for the so-called "best families" in the country, and are at the same time not eligible to the position of street car driver? If he may handle the ribbons and hold in check the blooded stock drawing the barouche of the president of the street railway company, why is it that he is disqualified to stand on the equine motive power by which Can anybody elucidate?

should there be so much here on this inconsequential footstool?

Still further, we would like to know f it can be reasonably accounted for en any sensible grounds why so many peo ple in this country object to riding in cars with colored people, and eating in in the same dining room with them, especially when the eatables have been through all their various stages of ma nipulation necessary to prepare them for the table gone through black hands? It hardly seems possible that any sane person could object to eating in the dining room, even at the same table with respectably and neatly clad colored gentleman and ladies, and not object to eating victuals that has passed through no other but black hands.

Of course the answer arrived at immediately by the smart Aleck of proscriptive class is, "Because you are THE colord people of Kentucky in Negroes." A PALATIAL RESIDENCE.

Ross R. Winans' New House, Which Will Rival Vanderbilt's.

[Baltimore Day] The proverbially lavish taste of Mr. Ross new building which is in course of erection Biddle and John streets. The structure is an American dwelling is conveyed. The structure so far has been completed only to the roof and is as yet in the rough, but when finished its magnificence will rival anything which has yet been built in Baltisard roof. The style is French renaissance, and the exterior, when completed, will re-semble very closely an old Belgian or French chateau, around which fancy seldom fails to cluster clinging ivy and historical associations. What remains of the lot after the bailding has taken up its quota will be transformed by the gardener into a beautiful garden, which is to cost $30,000. Around the yard and building Mr. Winans has ordered a brick enclosure ten feet high ar ourteen inches thick, which is to meet at the northern and southern corners of the house. The interior of the residence is to be as magnificent as the fancy of the owner can make it. It is to be of satin, red oak and ebonized cherry woods, inlaid and carved, and in each room there are to be costly beveled mirrors. The hall will run the full length of the building, and upon its ornamentation and decoration are to be expended alone $50,000. The cost of the entire build-ding and garden will not be less than $200,000, and in the construction Mr. Winans ordered that no expense be spared. There are rooms in the basement for sixteen servants; also passage of the coercion bill. His Secretary, drying-room, and upon the first floor there is to be a handsome ball-room, drawing, reception, dining rooms, parlor and library. The other floors are to be taken up with

The most striking features in the architectural appearance of the house are two towers, one at the front and the other at the rear. They reach only as far as the cornice, and remind one of the pictures of Kenilworth Castle. At the side of each of the towers rise tour circular chimneys, unique in design and made of pressed red brick, with jet black cement, all combined in one. The material of which the house is built is pressed brick and Long Meadow brown stone, and the blending of color is rich and perfect. Building operations were begun this spring, and the house will be fin

The boys, oh, the boys! They don't often think of flowers. They buy something for the teacher. They lay a stick of brown and yellow molasses candy on the deak with its appearance, and they ask, "Do you want that?"

They mean it for an offer and would never make another presentation if you were to say you did not want it. Or they bring you a flower design-in candy, or a big heart, also in candy, generally dirty, and ornamented with photographs—of fingerends; or they grow generous and give you a marble, most frequently a four-timer, sometimes a precious thing that they call a "crishtal." Then there are delightful talks at recess when the boys tell teacher about ponies and pigeon-houses and trades and which her beauty prompts us to be guilty of. | billy-goats and sweet-hearts.
